Art Unit: 3611

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

2. Claims 1-10 are finally rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by the German reference 892 561 (DT '561).

In fig. 8, DT '561 teaches a support member having the structure as claimed. The device includes an engagement portion 1/5, a fastening portion having a hole 9, an axial projection 23, and a weight saving cavity (fig. 7). Portions 1/5 and 9 are considered to comprise a plurality of structural units.

3. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

4. Claim 11 is finally rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over DT '561 in view of Nakamura.

As set forth above, DT '561 teaches substantially all that is claimed, but it is unclear what material the support is made of. Nakamura, however, discloses that aluminum (col. 1, line 40) is a typical material for a sprocket support. It would have been obvious to use aluminum for the sprocket support, as taught by Nakamura, since this is typical due to its light weight.

5. Applicant's arguments filed 3/2/05 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive.

In response to applicant's argument that the DT '561 references is for fastening a chain ring to a pedal crank and that the instant invention is for coupling with a freewheel, a recitation of the intended use of the claimed invention must result in a structural difference between the claimed invention and the prior art in order to patentably distinguish the claimed invention from the prior art. If the prior art structure is capable of performing the intended use, then it meets the claim. In a claim drawn to a process of making, the intended use must result in a manipulative difference as compared to the prior art. See In re Casey, 370 F.2d 576, 152 USPQ 235 (CCPA 1967) and In re Otto, 312 F.2d 937, 939, 136 USPQ 458, 459 (CCPA 1963).

6. The Declaration under 37 CFR 1.132 filed 3/2/05 is insufficient to overcome the rejections of claims 1-11 based upon anticipation and obviousness as set forth in the last Office action because: The Declaration is not relevant to claims 1-10 which have been rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b). Regarding claim 11, Declarant urges that one of ordinary skill in that art would not combine the fastening device of DT '561 with the sprocket assembly of Nakamura. The rejection does not suggest combining these elements. Instead, the rejection relies on Nakamura for the specific (and well known) teaching that aluminum is a typical material for a sprocket support.

7. THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within

Art Unit: 3611

TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
